Electronic fault in your car?
Best go straight to the professionals!
 When your unit is repaired by Bosch, it is in the hands of professionals throughout the entire repair process. What's more, the repaired component is usually back in the vehicle workshop within 48 hours after delivery to us.

Professional Electronic Repairs by Bosch

If the engine warning light is flashing or the engine is stuttering, if the radio is playing up, the navigation system isn't working, or there's a speedometer malfunction – dealing with electronic components in today's vehicles requires specialist knowledge and professional diagnostics equipment.

If a component fails, your workshop ensures that it is removed correctly, handles the process for you, and sends the faulty device to the Bosch Electronic Repair Service. There, after careful diagnosis, the device is repaired by electronics specialists with maximum efficiency and care. Special simulation software is used to check the repaired device right down to the last detail under realistic operating conditions. The component leaves the Bosch Electronic Repair Service, usually 48 hours after delivery, packaged to prevent any impact damage, and arrives at your workshop quickly, to be installed by experts there.

The Bosch Electronic Repair Service guarantees a top quality, professional repair. The Internet Portal is just a scan away:
